Why is development so often stalled by corruption and mismanagement?

What is the duty of a technical adviser when faced with corruption?

What reforms can empower the honest and give young professionals a role in rebuilding their nations?

Jonathan Richmond, MIT Phd in Civil Engineering — Transportation, was senior advisor to the Governments of Mauritius and Bangladesh and faced up to corruption in both countries, tracing patterns of bribery and parrying death threats along the way. This lecture proposes reform to empower young professionals to be openly honest and build better governance. The poem "Abar ashibo fire" will also be read in Bangla and English.
